NO STATEMENT ON MEXICO IS COMING FROM MR. WILSON

President Prepares One, But Then Changes His Mind About It.

SENATE OPPOSES INTERVENTION.

Poll Shows That Members Inclined to Favor Lifting of Embargo on the Shipment of Arms and Would Let the Rival Factions Fight It Out.

By United Press. WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—After announcing that he would give out a statement on the Mexican situation later in the day, President Wilson changed his mind and decided to withhold the statement indefinitely. The President's sudden change of mind followed the receipt of telegrams from Charles O'Shaughnessy and William Bayard Hale, telling of the latter's conference with General Carranza, hence it is believed that the situation shows improvement.

Secretary of State Bryan admitted that he had received notice from Charles O'Shaughnessy of Envoy John Lind's departure for Vera Cruz. He said he had also received a dispatch from William Bayard Hale, but he absolutely refused to divulge its contents.

An unofficial poll of the Senate has disclosed almost complete unanimity against armed intervention. Only Senator Stone was inclined to welcome such drastic action and he was not especially strong in favor of it.

The sentiment among the Senators seems to be that the lifting of the embargo prohibiting arms from being imported over the line into Mexico would give the Carranza forces an opportunity to fight it out with Huerta and be the best solution of the problem.

MAKE MARK OF YOUNG.

Jail Warden Believes He Snipped Plot to Kill Copley.

By United Press. UNIONTOWN, Nov. 12.—Jail Warden Newton Newcomer believes he has snipped a plot on the part of E. S. Glenn, a prisoner in the county jail, to rob Elmer Young, another prisoner, who is a cripple.

Both men were sent to jail from Connelville. Young has $25 in a Connelville bank and Jail Warden Newcomer found a letter in which Glenn was writing to the bank asking that $12 cash be sent to Young, in care of himself.

Young is believed to be weak-minded. Some days ago a solid watch he had when he was first locked up was found in the possession of another prisoner.

By United Press. CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 12.—Never in the history of navigation on the Great Lakes did a storm cause such loss of life and damage to property as the one that swept the four big freighter boats early in the week. It is estimated that 150 sailors were drowned and at least $3,200,000 loss suffered by steamship companies, most of them from this city.

It is feared that four great steamers have been lost. They are over 24 hours due now and nothing has been heard from them. Scores of bodies have been washed ashore by Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

PLAN FEW CHANGES ON NEW SCHEDULE OF BALTO. & OHIO

It Will Go Into Effect a Week from Next Sunday.

"INTERSTATE SPECIAL" STAYS.

New York-Chicago Flyer Will Continue to Run by Way of Connelville and Pittsburgh; Better Connections Made for West Virginia Patrons.

According to General Passenger Agent J. E. Taggart of the Baltimore & Ohio, who was in Connelville on Tuesday, the new schedule of the railroad will go into effect on November 23, instead of November 30, as erroneously announced elsewhere. Local officials have received no advance notice of changes in the time of trains on the Connelville division, but they expect that those that are made will be slight. It is added that the "Interstate Special" trains Nos. 7 and 8, will remain on the division. The trains run between New York and Chicago.

The new through train from Pittsburgh to Cumberland, which has been established several times by rumor, is not likely to be included in the schedule, though no definite information is available concerning it. However, if it is put on, the local officials believe that it will stop at Connelville if its time is such as would be convenient to local travelers. Connelville is an important station on the Baltimore & Ohio, and a through fast train would draw many people from the surrounding territory, hence it would be to the advantage of the railroad to make this a junction point for the train.

When trains Nos. 7 and 8 were taken off the old main line and sent over the Connelville and Pittsburgh divisions from Cumberland, patrons between Connelville and Chicago, by way of Wheeling, were deprived of service they had enjoyed.

Arrangements now have been made to establish a connection between trains 1 and 2, and 3 and 4 at Connelville and Chicago Junction by running a new train between those points.

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run between New York and St. Louis by way of Connelville, while trains Nos. 3 and 4 run between New York and Chicago by way of Connelville and Pittsburgh. The new train will make connections with both of these routes at Connelville and Chicago Junction.

CORONER MAKES REPORT

ENGINE FALLS ON HAY LOAD; TENDER SOUNDS FIRE ALARM

Engineer Fatally Injured in Wreck of Flyer Between Connelville and Uniontown.

By United Press. JOHET, Pa., Nov. 12.—The Overland Limited on the Santa Fe railroad, bound from Denver to Chicago, ran into an open switch here this morning and the locomotive tender, engine and baggage car were derailed. Engineer Johnny Duman was fatally scalded by escaping steam, and Fireman Edward Thompson suffered painful though not serious injuries.

The wreck was accompanied by several unique features. As the engine left the tracks it toppled over a viaduct. At that very instant Joe Green was driving a load of alfalfa underneath the tracks and the engine descended upon the roof of his wagon, setting fire to the alfalfa. Green escaped being crushed by just a few inches.

The tender followed the engine in its downward flight. It fell some way to one side, snapping off a pole carrying the fire alarm wires, which automatically sent in an alarm.

The fire department arrived in time to extinguish the flames which consumed the baggage car, the engine having plunged down on the burning alfalfa.

"SAFETY FIRST" CAR WILL VISIT REGION FOR P. & L. E. MEN

"Little Giant" First Railroad to Put It Into Use.

AT DICKERSON RUN THURSDAY.

Demonstration Party Will Visit the Big Xmas Here Next Week; Railroad Aims to Maintain Record of Never Having Killed a Passenger.

The first "Safety Exhibit Car" to be put in use on any railroad will make its initial appearance on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad and will visit the Connelville division next week, visiting Dickerson Run on Thursday.

This car, which was first opened at the Grand Central Terminal, New York City, on July 30, is a feature of the systematic plan of educating railroad employees that safety is to be the first consideration at all times. It was designed for the purpose of inculcating the popular "Safety First" doctrine in the men of the road, but it contains, however, an exhibit that is interesting to the public as well. Attached to the car is a day coach to be used as a lecture car, being equipped with a stereopticon.

The interior of the car is finished in white enamel. Along both sides are shelves about three feet from the floor, finished in mahogany, which contain models of every kind of a machine used in the many shops on the system. The company requires all machines to be properly guarded so as to prevent accidents which have been caught in the various parts and injured. The models showing the proper manner of applying the guards, being perfect in detail and show at a glance how to make the machine safe. Above the models, along the side walls, are rows of pictures neatly framed showing machine guards and various safety appliances which are both interesting and instructive.

On one side of the car the picture space is devoted entirely to unsafe practices, there being about 200 pictures which explain graphically the common practices of railroad employees that cause accidents resulting in injuries to themselves and others. Along side of a photograph showing the improper and unsafe way of doing a certain kind of work is another picture showing the safe and proper way. The trespassing problem is clearly explained by pictures showing how persons risk their lives needlessly trespassing on railroad property.

It is a well known fact that the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie company holds an enviable record in the matter of safety, no passenger having been killed while traveling on this line.

The boiler house, engine house and blacksmith shop of the Clare Coke Company, at its plant near Veltown, in Westmoreland county, were destroyed by flames early yesterday morning. ## TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Get Less Meat If You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which exerts an overwork on the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. (Regular) eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the uric acid, waste and poisons you feel in full misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the chances often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

Neutralize these irritating acids by flushing the body's uric waste with "Jad Salts" from four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act and bladder diseases disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with bicarbonate, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and is safe, healthful, harmless and makes a delicious effervescent lithe-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases—Adv.

CHEAP RELIGION IS AIM

Bibles and Other Church Necessities Included in Tariff Cuts.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The American husband, who has been wont to settle himself in his easy chair, plant his feet on another, and spend Sunday morning reading the newspapers, and also the husband who plays golf while the wife and children represent the family at church, will have long enjoyed hereafter than ever before a "cut" in service. The new Democratic tariff law, it is confidently believed, will make church-going cheaper.

For one thing, the tariff on 25 per cent, which amounts to about 50 cents apiece on the popular editions of foreign made Bibles is removed entirely. All down the line of religious supplies, the new tariff aims at retail reductions. Organs are reduced 10 per cent in import duty; stained glass windows should be some cheaper owing to a 10 per cent tariff cut; music is reduced 10 per cent and church furniture from seven to ten per cent.

Another series of reductions in the tariff which should make all church supplies cheaper is aimed at all tracts, pamphlets and religious paraphernalia, from which import duties have been entirely removed.

WANTS MONEY FOR ROADS.
Thinks Highways More Important Than Panama Canal.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 12.—The labor and money spent on the Panama Canal might have been used to better purpose on the highways of this country. Oliver Wilson of this state, member of the National Grange, told the delegates to the national convention of the Patrons of Husbandry, in his annual report yesterday.

Mr. Wilson also submitted ideas from the viewpoint of the farmer regarding rural credit, saying: "I believe any rural credit system should make it easy and safe for a farmer to borrow money to buy or improve his land or equipment to operate the same."

REMARKABLE STATEMENT

Interesting Reading for the Man or Woman Who Has Been a Small Estate.

The Superintendent of Banking of the State of New York, in a recent report says: "History does not record a single instance of the loss of a dollar of funds held in trust by a trust company. On the other hand history does record thousands of dollars lost through the carelessness, lack of experience and dishonesty of individual trustees." Reading this, any thinking man will at once see the wisdom of naming a reliable trust company as his Executor or to serve him in any capacity of trust. Here in Conneltsville we have such a company—The Young Trust Company, an organization that keeps trust funds separate and distinct from its other assets and whose corporate responsibility, continuous life and experienced officials make safe and able management of any property committed to its care.

Three Reasons Why POSTUM Instead of Coffee

A Food-Drink

Has Fine Flavour

Free From Drugs

Postum is made of choice whole wheat roasted, with a small portion of New Orleans molasses, contains the nutritive elements of the grain, and is wholesome and nourishing. Coffee has no food value whatever.

Postum has a dark, seal brown color, which changes to rich golden brown when cream is added. It has a delightful aroma and a rich, snappy flavour quite similar to that of Old Dutch Java.

Postum is absolutely free from any drug. Coffee contains caffeine, a poisonous drug—about 2½ grains to the cup. It often causes biliousness, headaches, heart agitation, nervousness, sleeplessness, and other ills. Postum, being pure and free from caffeine or any other drug, may be used freely by young and old.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum must be well boiled to bring out the flavour and food value. Instant Postum is a soluble powder. Made instantly by stirring a spoonful in a cup of hot water—with sugar and cream added.

If coffee don't agree try POSTUM.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrup," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without your or your physician's knowledge of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of J. C. F. W. Fletcher.

Thousands of Women

Have Been Restored to Health By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

There is no doubt about this fact. Why? During the last 30 years we have published in the newspapers of this country volumes of letters from women who have been relieved of all their suffering by the timely aid of this grand old medicine. Letters like the following, true, genuine and honest expressions of gratitude coming from grateful hearts. Surely you can believe these women.

Mrs. L. S. BRENNER, Hudson, Mich., says:—

"Sometime ago I was taken with a terrible pain in my right side, such sharp pains just like a knife sticking me. I tried but in vain, but that did no good. I went to our family doctor (we were living in Fayette, Ohio, at that time) and he said it was organic indigestion. I doctored with him a while but kept getting worse. The pain was so terrible I could hardly stand on my feet. I would have that sharp pain in my right side, and a dull heavy pain the whole length of my limb. I realized that something had to be done quickly, so I looked up all of your advertisements and found, and saw several that described my case. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me from the first dose, and when I had taken two bottles my trouble was gone. Your medicine has done so much for me that I am willing you should publish this letter for the sake of other suffering women."—Mrs. L. S. BRENNER, Hudson, Michigan.

Mrs. L. E. BOWERS, Girard, Pa., says:—

"I take pleasure in informing you of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had a sick spell last February, and for some months after that I was not regular and had many bad feelings. I was tired all the time, had dull headaches, not much appetite, and also what the doctor called organic indigestion. Your Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me and I feel that too much cannot be said in its praise as I am now able to do my own work. You are perfectly welcome to use my testimonial for the benefit of others."—Mrs. L. E. BOWERS, R.F.D. No. 1, Girard, Pa.

Mrs. ELIZABETH GENTILCORE, Buffalo, N.Y., says:—

"I feel that I must write to you about your wonderful remedies. About ten years ago I was troubled with female weakness and was all run down. I was tired all the time and could hardly walk without feeling dizzy. I heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, took it, and also used the Sanative Wash. I got stronger, and have not had those dizzy spells since. I feel that I owe my health to you, and hope your remedies will help others as they have me. I tried most everything I heard of, and yours are the best medicines for women's ailments."—Mrs. ELIZABETH GENTILCORE, 26 Glen Street, Buffalo, New York.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with women's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

THURSDAY EVENING, NOV. 13, 1913.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Chamber of Commerce has been called together this evening to determine whether it shall continue longer in a vain endeavor to promote the progress of Conneltsville, or whether it shall disband amid the bores and jeers of similarly unsuccessful towns some of them very close at hand.

The Chamber of Commerce should not DISBAND, but it should REORGANIZE.

The failure of the Chamber of Commerce to make proper progress during the past couple of years has not been the fault of its members. They have given it proper financial support. They have not been asked to do more. The other work has been undertaken by the directors. It has failed because of the indifference or inefficiency of the paid secretaries, and the lack of united support by business interests.

Both these faults may be remedied. Perhaps it may not be necessary to go away from home for a secretary. One of the best secretaries we ever had was a home man. A more difficult matter, perhaps, is to unite our business men in the work of promoting the city. Yet that should not be difficult, once they fully understand that THEY ARE SERVING THEIR OWN INTERESTS FIRST, LAST AND ALL THE TIME.

The Chamber of Commerce should, in fact, be supported by the business and property interests of Conneltsville. They are the chief beneficiaries. The promotion of Conneltsville means to the business men increased trade and enlarged profits; to the owners of realty, it means increased values of property and consequently increased fortune. These are conditions worth working for and expending some money on.

On the other hand, if the work of the Chamber of Commerce is to be wholly abandoned, and if no further efforts are to be made to locate new industries or new business in Conneltsville, these interests must content themselves with their present volume of prosperity. NOT ONLY THAT, BUT THEY MUST BE PREPARED TO SEE A REGRESSION OF THAT PROSPERITY.

In these busy times of town-building as an art the race is not to those who sit and wait, but to those who are up and doing. This may have a academic sound, but there is no harder common sense. The burden of the situation, we repeat, is on the business and property interests, IT'S THEIR JOB. If they can afford to let Conneltsville drift, be sure the floating element in Conneltsville, THEIR'S NOTHING TIED TO THE LATTER.

The Courier's advice to the Chamber of Commerce is to reorganize with such old officers whose hearts are in the work and such new blood as may be necessary and try again. In this connection we offer the suggestion that the body affiliate closely with the city administration. Lack of sympathy between these interests has been at times in the past somewhat embarrassing.

RAILROAD EFFICIENCY.

The new rules of railroading include efficiency and economy as well as safety and speed. In the operation of railroads under modern conditions, safety is a matter of humanity; efficiency is a matter of necessity.

Public sentiment demands that needless sacrifice of life and limb must be stopped. The increased expenses and the halted revenues of the transportation interests demand that their managers shall make every dollar go much further than it ever went before. In compliance with this demand, every track in operation must be kept stopped and every form of extravagance abolished.

The presence in this section of an expert in locomotive firing is only one form of checking extravagance and promoting efficiency. The fuel bill of a great railroad system is an important portion of its operating expenses and it has been demonstrated that with proper firing the coal bill can be materially cut down.

After the fireman has been instructed on this point, he will be expected to produce the results. If he does not he will be under the imputation of being careless, stupid or lazy.

THE STAMP LICKERS.

The announcement that the Post-office Department has issued orders requiring the postmasters and their clerks on request of patrons to lick stamps and affix them to Christmas packages will be a sad blow to the dignity of some of the members of officialdom who have hitherto stood upon pedestals of reserve high above the heads of the common people. It will also be hard on their tongues. The luscious soft may survive, but the gum-softened tongues will have had such a licking that they will want to do nothing but rest.

The Democratic administration ought to be indicted for cruelty to humanity. Congress passed all sorts of denigrating legislation for the relief of postal clerks and other classes of labor. Homes are shortened, for example, until the relief is crippled out of consideration for the payrolls; yet here comes this barbarous order to lick the stamps, big and little, letter and parcel, that can be affixed to the avalanche of packages that is destined to flow through the post-office during the festive holiday season.

Democratic reform is developing some disturbing influences in this country, not the least of which will be heard from, if not during the otherwise joyous Christmastide, certainly when it is over. The Stamp-lickers will be ready to fight for a new administration.

The arrest of a Dunbar policeman for hunting magazine canvassers out of season will develop the interesting question under what provocation a policeman may shoot and how often he may wing homing birds on the fly.

NOTES OF THE DAY

AS GATHERED UP ABOUT SCOTSDALE

Hospital Patient Improving and He is Brought Home.

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR SOLDIERS.

They Are Invited to the Christian Church this Evening: Storm-Bound Travelers Reach Home: Other Notes of the Big Mail Town.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Nov. 12.—The condition of Mrs. Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Stuebner of Evansburg, who was operated on for appendicitis, at the Mount Pleasant Hospital on Friday is reported improving. Her sister, Miss Mary of Pittsburgh, has been with her most of the time.

LEPROUS HOME. Earl Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson of near town, who was operated on for a diseased bone of the leg, has been brought home from the Mount Pleasant Hospital, and is reported slowly improving.

FROM NEW JERSEY. Miss Anna Twilcke has returned to her home in Evansburg after several months spent in Pleasantville, New Jersey.

SOLDIERS INVITED. Members of the Grand Army of the Republic and Sons of Veterans are given a special invitation to attend tonight the services which are being held in the Christian Church this week. Rev. O. J. Howerth, the pastor, is a son of a Civil War veteran.

NEW WINTER RESORT. Lloyd Yothens and P. O. Peterson have arrived home from three days spent at Lehigh, Pa., the new winter resort. Mr. and Mrs. Yothens and Mr. Peterson went up to that place on Sunday morning and made the journey all right in spite of the storm. Prof. Peterson intended to bring Mrs. Peterson home from a visit with her father, W. L. Johnson. The storm was so great that the men could not get out of Lehigh until Tuesday night when they were brought to the street car line and managed to get home in the evening. Their wives and automobiles were left behind. Drifts were said to be 15 feet deep in that locality. One automobile, belonging to some other travelers, was left standing almost hidden by the drifts along the road.

WEEK. The boys have been going well, the cold weather having encouraged buying. The free show from 2 until 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the Amuse, D. A. Coulter's moving picture house, has proven very popular with everyone. The weather conditions this morning, with a south wind blowing as it did Saturday evening before the record snowfall, indicates that more good weather may be on the road. The street is almost clear of snow now, where any clearing was done, but ice marks the sidewalks which were neglected.

VISITORS HERE. Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson of Ardara, uncle and aunt of Mrs. Albert Storey were here over Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Storey.

AT MEETING. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Black were at Uniontown on Friday and Saturday attending a business meeting of the Puritan Coal Company. The plants are located near Uniontown. They attended a meeting of the Thompson-Connelville Coal Company, whose plants are near Evansburg. Mrs. Black has been interested in these two coal companies for several years.

W. C. T. U. MEET. The Westernland County Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold a Worker's Conference in the First Presbyterian Church of Greensburg today, opening at 9:30. At the morning session the county executive committee and the board of superintendents held a meeting. The afternoon meeting is open to the public. The women's suffrage campaign for 1915 will be discussed. The following from here are in attendance: Ardmore W. W. Elcher, Josiah Reynolds, May Garber and Lucy Poole.

NEXT REGULAR MEETING. The next regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the home of Mrs. Fannie Reynolds on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, and all members are urged to attend.

GO HUNTING. Rev. J. E. Hutchison, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and J. N. Kling, a well known mill man, have gone to Centre county for several days hunt near Phillipsburg, where Mr. Kling has relatives. Rev. Mr. Hutchison will have a supply in his pulpit next Sunday.

BITTEN BY DOG. Alton Medgar, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Medgar, of near White school house, was severely bitten on the arm by a dog belonging to A. J. Sidaway, a neighbor. Mr. Sidaway at once had the dog killed.

AT MONONGAHELA. Rev. H. S. Piper, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is at Monongahela City this week conducting a series of meetings for Rev. J. P. Murray, D. D., the pastor at that place.

EVERSON SURPRISE. A birthday surprise party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parker of Everson, Thursday evening, in honor of their son, Joseph Parker, Jr. A color scheme of red and white was used and a pleasant evening was spent in games, with a dainty lunch at 10:30. The guests present were: Misses Minnie Dunnecker, Sara Harden, Mary and Eva Moorehead, Florence and Jennie Hill, Ethel and Carrie Ritchie, Laura Tische, Lizzie Zolhofer, Madeline Smith, Florence Newell, and Messrs. Homer Hagerman, Lawrence Jackson, Raymond Porter, Wilmer Hixon, Albert Reagan, Charles Elcher, Wilbur Hamilton, Edgar McLaughlin, and Charles and Joseph Beard. Out of town guests were Messrs. Rose and May Hayes and Earl Martin, Albert McManis, Harry Deak, Herbert Shaw and John Burnes.

AFTER COAL FUNDS

Litigation in Chicago. Over O'Garra Coal Company.

Judge Mack sitting in the District Court, Chicago, has granted the filing of a petition on the part of the National City Bank of Chicago, for an order upon the receivers of the O'Garra Coal Company for the turning over of any funds which have been collected on accounts upon which the bank holds the assignment of such accounts as collateral for funds loaned Thomas J. O'Garra, president of the O'Garra Coal Company, in the form of notes or otherwise. It is contended that about $40,000 of such funds have been collected out of an approximate amount of $180,000, in which is included a claim against the Lake Shore railroad for $37,000.

A week was granted to the receivers which to answer. Whether or not such claims will have priority over other accounts in bankruptcy is a matter which will require the attention of the court. Any action on the petition of the stockholders for the discharge of Thomas J. O'Garra as receiver will come before Judge Carpenter on his return on Friday or Saturday.

COAL AND COKE ADVANCE.

Protect Against Increased Transportation Charges are Filed.

A protest against the proposed advance in the rates on coal and coke by the Chicago and North Western Railway Company, operating in eastern territory has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Chicago Coal Dealers Association, representing 165 wholesalers and retail dealers throughout the city.

The increased rates are contained in tariffs recently filed by the eastern carriers and affect shipments of anthracite, semi-bituminous coals and coke from mines and ovens in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois to Chicago and all landing and group points in the middle west.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR

Just Try It! Hair Gets Soft, Shiny and Luxuriant at Once! No More Falling Hair.

If you care for heavy hair, that glimmers with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Dandruff.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scourge robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots fall out, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandruff at any drug store or toilet counter. Apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Dandruff. If eventually—why not now?—Adv.

GINK AND DINK—Then Came the Last Straw.

For the Children

Costume For a Witch at a Halloween Party.

Ghosts hold carnival on Halloween and many and weird are the tricks and schemes prepared for that night. Entertaining is entirely informal, and it adds to the fun if the gathering be held in a barn, a loft, a kitchen or even a cellar. It is a good plan for one of the older girls to disguise herself as a witch. The illustration above shows an excellent costume. A "thrill-lac" costume is to wear all guests upon the floor around a large mistletoe sheet. In an absolutely dark room. While the witch tells a blood curdling story illustrative objects are passed around underneath the sheet from hand to hand. A kid glove stuffed with bran and soaked in ice water for an hour is as clumsy a hand as one could wish. Peeling white grapes, icy cold, make "loose eyes," cold boiled macaroni and spaghetti will represent muscles, a toy mouse and spider, a hot baked potato and a prickly burr add interest, while a plaster of paris skull could be added for the climax.

Domino Fortune.

Most children have a box of dominoes in the house. Did you know that there is a way of telling fortunes with dominoes? Try to learn their significance and when your friends come tell them their future prospects. Lay the dominoes on the table with their faces down, shuffle them, then draw one and see the number. Here are the meanings—

Double six—You will receive money.
Six-five—Going to place of amusement.
Six-four—You will have trouble.
Six-three—You will ride in an auto.
Six-two—You will receive a present.
Six-one—You will give charity.
Six-blank—You will suffer.
Double five—You will move to another house.
Five-four—You will buy property.
Five-three—You will receive a visit.
Five-two—You will take a water trip.
Five-one—You will have a romance.
Double four—You will treat a crowd.
Four-three—A false alarm at your house.
Four-two—Treasure of treasure.
Four-one—Trouble with a friend.
Four-blank—You'll get a letter.
Double three—A stolen wedding.
Three-two—You will lose money.
Three-one—A great discovery at hand.
Double two—You have a rival.
Two-one—You will have a quarrel.
Two-blank—You will get good news.
Double one—You will find something.
One-blank—Success will award you.
Double blank—Bad luck.

Jumping the Candle.

This is a time honored game for Halloween by which any maiden may find out in what month she is to be married.

Twelve candles, named for the months in regular rotation, are lighted and placed on the floor about two feet apart in a long row or two rows if the room is small. Over these candles, one by one, each player must jump. The first candle that is extinguished by the draft of air from the jump tells the month.

Care should be taken to avoid setting the clothing on fire from the candles.

The Blarney Stone.

The blarney stone is a stone found for a Halloween game and is considerable fun. A stone should be treated to a generous bath of whitewash and be placed in the center of a large table. A round one is best. Tell how the fairies have placed a spell upon it and great good fortune will attend any one who succeeds in kissing it after having been blinded and turned around three times.

Fortune Telling.

For Halloween burn all the letters of the alphabet in a big pumpkin with a hot poker. Then hang it in the doorway, twist rapidly and have each guest try to stab a letter with a long pin. The letter hit is supposed to be the initial letter of one's future mate. If none is hit, celibacy is the fate in store.

Health Note.

What is the quickest way to get fat? Buy it of the butcher.

The Jack-o'-Lantern.

All of the summer he grew and grew. Hidden by cornstalks tall. All of the summer the children knew. And eagerly longed for fall. As his golden color and wondrous size. They watched with joy in their merry eyes. Jack of the Lantern, he'll light your path into the haunts of day. For this is the night when the pixies rule. And the goblins have their way. And false dance on the meadows green. The mystic circle for Halloween.

BUILD OF THE BABY.

Normal Weights and Measurements Up to Three Years of Age.

A baby should weigh at birth seven pounds, at three months eleven pounds, at five months fourteen pounds, at one year twenty-one pounds, at two years twenty-six pounds and at three years thirty-one pounds. The length of a baby at birth should be twenty and one-half inches, at three months twenty-two inches, at five months twenty-three and a half inches, at one year twenty-eight inches, at two years thirty-two and a half inches and at three years thirty-five inches. Its chest measure at birth should be thirteen and a half inches, at three months fourteen and a half inches, at five months sixteen inches, at one year eighteen inches, at two years nineteen inches and at three years twenty inches. Some babies are built very small, and, if well, even if below these figures, there is no cause for worry. But if a baby is about normal size and does not come up to these figures its diet should be carefully looked into, as evidently it is not being properly nourished.

The growth of baby's body is very important. See that the teeth come in properly and that the legs grow straight and strong. The babies should be carefully watched and developed naturally.—Rural Farmer.

MAGIC OF A MAGNET.

Makes a Chain Rigid Enough For a Man to Climb It.

A Berlin correspondent of the Scientific American describes an interesting experiment that was made at the works of one of the large German manufacturing firms with one of their lifting magnets.

A chain, fastened to the ground and carrying an iron ball at its free end, was raised to a vertical position by the approach of the great lifting magnet suspended from a crane. The attraction of the magnet was so strong that the chain remained in a perfectly vertical position. A grown-up workman climbed up the chain without disturbing its rigidity in the least. The chain seemed to float in air. The magnetic pull on the ball was greater than the gravitational pull on the man.

This remarkable experiment shows the enormous power of attraction exerted by the lifting magnets that are used in iron and steel works to carry about iron material of every description. The magnets enable the operator to seize iron material at any point desired and convey it to any other point within the range of the crane. Incidentally the use of lifting magnets has greatly diminished the risk of accidents in the moving of heavy masses of iron.

Not Immune.

Mrs. Martin met an acquaintance one morning while out shopping.

"How is Mrs. Callahan," that lives near you?" asked Mrs. Martin.

"Of course you know she has a child very ill with scarlet fever?"

"Oh, yes, indeed," replied the other. "I know it, but I don't dare to go and see her."

"Why not?" inquired Mrs. Martin.

"There is said to be no danger of taking the fever, you know, after one is slain."

"Oh, but, then, you know," replied the other woman, "I'm no young in my feelings!"—Lippincott's.

HE WAS A GOOD SOLDIER.

And His Loss Was Deplored by Paul I., the Half Mad Czar.

In Walezewski's life of Paul I., the half mad son of Catherine the Great, occurs the following anecdote illustrative of the workings of the disorganized mind. It seems that in a report on military affairs submitted to the Emperor Paul the first syllable of the Russian word for comet or courier, was carried over from one page to another.

The emperor took it for a proper name, and, moved by a caprice, he gave orders that Ensign Kij should be promoted to the rank of Lieutenant. He saw an expression of embarrassment and disappointment on the faces of the staff, who did not dare to explain his error; so the next day he promoted the Lieutenant of the day before to the rank of captain and some days later to that of colonel, demanding that the officer should be presented to him at once. There was consternation everywhere. The officers were turned upside down in search of the imaginary Kij.

A subaltern of the name or something like it was found in one of the regiments quartered on the Don. He was sent for, but Paul grew impatient, and in the end he had to be told that Kij had been carried off suddenly by a stroke. "That is a pity," observed the czar. "He was a good soldier."

THE NAME "ARTHUR."

It Has a Wider Significance Than is Generally Supposed.

The New Life, the London organ of "the most ancient faith," gives its readers the following recollections of the name "Arthur."

The name is not pronounced Arthur, but Ar-thur.

The "A" is added for pronouncing in an accentuated manner.

The "R" should be by itself and pronounced like "are."

"R" signifies the head, and the second part of the name is "Th" or "Tan" or "Tor."

Arthur or Arthor is a tetragrammaton and is shown as R-Th-O-R. It means the head of Thor or Tor—i. e., the head of the highest intelligence.

The Tharus or Tharus of the east is similar to the Tharus or Tharus of Ireland and Scotland.

They were the religious mendicants of the past who led the people rightly in the way of the most ancient faith.

With the uprooting of the ancient idealism these mendicants gradually assumed a political mission because of their social power among the Celtic peoples.

The word Tory associated with modern politics has come from this. The word Tory, therefore, has a similar meaning to Arthur and implies "the party or people of divine intelligence."

Portugal's Wonderful Climate.

The climate of Portugal is the most wonderful in Europe. A polyglot crowd of scores of thousands flies annually to the Riviera from every part of Europe in order to enjoy the supposed maximum of sunshine, but often to be misdirected by warring skies and with the cruel mistral as a certainty. At Lisbon, on the other hand, cold weather is an unknown quantity. The temperature is not only higher than that of the Riviera, but is equal to a degree that almost defies belief. What this means in practical effect is illustrated by the fact that in March last I met an English lady on board ship who had stayed six weeks at Mont' Estoril, near Lisbon, and had bathed in the sea every day in February. Nor was the season exceptionally warm.—Scribner's.

The Pundit's Pun.

A very distinguished British man of science had the folio, says Professor Brander Matthews in the Century Magazine, of inventing thrilling episodes and pretending that they were of his own experience.

On one occasion, after he had spun a marvelous yarn, with himself in the center of the coil, a skeptical friend looked him in the eye and asked sternly: "Clifford, do you mean to say that this really occurred to you?"

Upon the imaginative man of science replied, with a twinkle:

"Yes—it just occurred to me!"

Crushed.

"Miss Gladys, can you cook?" inquired the prospective suitor cautiously.

"I can," she answered sweetly, "but the young man I am engaged to assure me that I won't have to."

WHIP CORD AND MOIRE.

Very chic in this coat suit of blue, black green whipcord with vest and collar of darker green moire. The coat is individualized by its broad revers which fall away from a narrow vest of the moire buttoned with crystal buttons and having a rolling collar trimmed with more of these buttons. The coat back is guileless and fitting but a moire belt appears at the side seam and buckles the front fullness in place. The three-quarter sleeves have turn-back cuffs, button trimmed. The skirt closing directly in front has a conservative slash, the overlapping edge finished by a row of buttons to the knee and holding the draping of the right side.

CHAPTER XVI. Who Shot Griggs?

FOR a few minutes longer the two men discussed the details of the crime, theorizing over the baffling event. Then Cassidy entered.

"I got the factory at Hartford on the wire," he explained, "and they gave me Mr. Maxin himself. He said this was surely a special gun, which was made for the use of Henry Sylvester, one of the professors at Yale. He wanted it for demonstration purposes. Mr. Maxin said the thing has never been put on the market, and that they never will be. I got this man, Sylvester, Cassidy went on, "on the phone too. He says that his house was robbed about eight weeks ago, and among other things the silencer was stolen."

"Is there any chance that young Gilder did shoot Griggs?" asked Denarest.

"You can search me!" the inspector answered. "My men were just outside the door of the room where Eddie Griggs was shot to death, and none of them heard a sound. It's that infernal silencer thing. Of course, I know that all the gang was in the house."

"Did you see them go in?"

"No, I didn't, but Griggs—"

"Griggs is dead, Burke. You're up against it. You can't prove that Carson or Chicago Red or Dacey ever entered that house."

"Well, then, I'll charge young Gilder with murder and call the Turner woman as a witness."

"You can't question her on the witness stand. The law doesn't allow you to make a wife testify against her husband. No, Burke, your only chance of getting the murderer of Griggs is by a confession."

"Then I'll charge them both with the murder," the inspector growled vindictively. "And, by the way, they'll both go to trial unless somebody comes through. If it's my last net on earth, I'm going to get the man who shot Eddie Griggs."

Burke, after the lawyer had left him watching the door expectantly for the coming of Aggie Lynch, whom he had ordered brought before him. But when at last Dan appeared and stood aside to permit her passing into the office, the inspector gasped at the unexpectedness of the vision. The next instant the inspector forgot his surprise in a sincere, almost ardent admiration.

"The girl was rather short, but of a slender elegance of form that was ravishing. Her costume had about it an indefinable air, a quality of perfection in its line. On another it might have appeared perhaps the merest trifle of garish. But that fault was made into a virtue by the correcting influence of the girl's face. It was a childish face, childish in the exquisite smoothness of the soft, pink skin, childish in the wondering stare of the blue eyes, now so widely opened in dismay, childish in the wistful drooping of the eyelid month."

"Now, then, my girl," Burke said roughly. "I want to know—"

"There came a change, wrought in the twinkling of an eye. The tiny, tripping foot of the girl rose and fell in a wistful stamp."

"What do you mean by this outrage?" she stormed. Her voice was low and rich, with a charming roundness that seemed the very hallmark of gentility. "I demand my instant release."

"Wait a minute!" Burke remonstrated. "Wait a minute!"

"You wait!" she cried violently. "You just wait, I tell you, until my papa hears of this!"

"Who is your papa?"

"I don't tell you," came the petulant retort from the girl. "You would probably give my name to the reporters. If it ever got into the newspapers my family would die of shame!"

"Now, the simplest way out for both of us is for you to tell me just who you are. You see, young lady, you were found in the house of a notorious crook."

"How perfectly absurd! I was calling on Miss Mary Turner."

"How did you come to meet her any how?"

"I was introduced to Miss Turner by Mr. Richard Gilder. Perhaps you have heard of his father, the owner of the Emporium."

"Oh, yes, I've heard of his father and of him too."

"Then you must see at once that you are entirely mistaken in this matter."

"You see, young lady, the fact is that even if you were introduced to Miss Turner by young Mr. Gilder this same Mary Turner herself is an ex-crook, and she's just been arrested for murder."

"Murder?" the girl gasped.

"Yes, yes. I see, it's a mistake about you you don't want it to go any further—not a mile further, that's sure. So, you see, now, that's one of the reasons why I must know just who you are."

"You should have told me all about this horrible thing in the first place. Now the girl's manner was transformed."

ed. She smiled wistfully at the inspector and spoke with a simplicity that was peculiarly potent in its effect on the official.

"My name is Helen Travers West," she announced.

"Not the daughter of the railway president?"

"Yes," the girl admitted. "Oh, please don't tell any one," she begged prettily. "Surely, Mr. you see now quite plainly why it must never be known by any one in all the wide, wide world that I have ever been brought to this perfectly dreadful place—though you have been quite nice. Please let me go home."

She plucked a minute handkerchief from her hand bag, put it to her eyes and began to sob quietly.

"The burly inspector of police was moved to quick sympathy."

"That's all right, little lady," he exclaimed cheerfully. "Now, don't you be worried, not a little bit. Take it from me, Miss West. Just go ahead and tell me all you know about this Turner woman. Did you see her yesterday?"

The girl's sobs ceased. "After a final dash with the minute handkerchief she turned forward a little toward the inspector and proceeded to put a question to him with great earnestness."

"Will you let me go home as soon as I've told you the teeny little I know?"

"Yes," Burke agreed promptly, with an encouraging smile. He added as one might to an alarmed child, "No one is going to hurt you, young lady."

"Well, then, you see, it was this way," began the brisk explanation.

"Mr. Gilder was calling on me one afternoon, and he said to me then that he knew a very charming young woman who—"

"Here the speech ended abruptly, and once again the handkerchief was brought into play as the sobbing broke forth with increased violence. Presently the girl's voice rose in a wail."

"Oh, this is dreadful—dreadful!" In the final wail the wail broke to a wail.

Burke felt himself vaguely guilty as the cause of such suffering on the part of one so young, so fair, so innocent. But his well meant attempt to assuage the stricken creature's woe was futile. The sobbing continued.

"I'm afraid," the girl asserted dismally. "I'm afraid you will—put me in a cell!"

"Pooh!" Burke returned gallantly. "Why, my dear young lady, nobody in the world could think of you and a cell the same time—no, indeed!"

"Oh, thank you!"

"Are you sure you've told me all you know about this woman?"

"Oh, yes! I've only seen her two or three times," came the ready response.

"Oh, please, commissioner! Won't you let me go home?"

The use of a title higher than his own flattered the inspector, and he was moved to graciousness.

"Now, you see," he said in his heavy voice, yet very kindly, "no one has hurt you—not even a little bit, after all. Now, you run right home to your mother."

The girl sprang up joyously and started toward the door, with a dazed ravishing smile for the pleased official at the desk.

It was at this moment that Cassidy entered from the opposite side of the office. As his eyes fell on the girl at the door across from him his stolid face lighted in a grin. And in that same instant of recognition between the two the color went out of the girl's face. The little red lips snapped together in a line of supreme disgust against this vicissitude of fate after all her misadventures in the face of the agent.

"Hello, Aggie," the detective remarked, with a smirk, while the inspector stared from one to the other and the jaw dropped from the stark surprise.

The girl returned deliberately to the chair she had occupied through the interview with the inspector and dropped into it weakly. It was after a minute of silence, in which the two men sat staring, that at last she spoke with a savage wrath against the pit into which she had fallen after her arduous efforts.

"Ain't that the—best luck!"

"Cassidy, do you know this woman?" asked Burke.

"Sure I do!" came the placid answer. "She's little Aggie Lynch—can woman—died her time at Burnside."

For a little time there was silence, the while Burke sat staring at the smiling face of the girl. Then he set his features arking, rose from his chair and walked to position directly in the front of the girl, who still refused to look in his direction.

"On the level, now," the inspector demanded, "when did you see Mary Turner last?"

"Early this morning. We slept together last night, because I had the willies. She blew the joint about half past ten."

"What's the use of your lying to me?"

"So help me!" Aggie continued with the utmost solemnity. "Mary never left the house all night. I'd swear that's the truth on a pile of Bibles a mile high!"

"I have to be higher than that. Mary Turner was arrested just after midnight. Young woman, you'd better tell all you know."

"I don't know a thing!" Aggie retorted.

Burke drew the pistol from his pocket and extended it toward the girl.

"How long has she owned this gun?" he asked threateningly.

"She didn't own it."

"Oh, then it's Carson's?"

"I don't know who it is," Aggie replied. "I never laid eyes on it till now."

"English Eddie was killed with this gun last night. Now, who did it? Come on, now! Who did it?"

"How should I know? What do you think I am—a fortune teller?"

"Now, Aggie Lynch, you listen to me. Tell me what you know, and I'll see you make a clean getaway, and I'll add you a nice little piece of money too. Now, what do you say?"

"I say you're a great big stiff! What do you think I am? Aggie wheeled on the detective. "Say, take me out of here. I'd rather be in the cooler than hero with him!"

CHAPTER XVII. The Trap That Failed.

THE scornful maiden went out of the door under the escort of Cassidy. Burke bowed gallantly to her lithe back and blew a kiss from his thick finger tips in mocking reverence for her as an artist in her way. Then when he learned that Edward Gilder had arrived he ordered that the magistrate and the district attorney be admitted and that the son also be sent up from his cell.

"It's a bad business, Mr. Burke," said with hearty sympathy to the shaken father after the formal greetings that followed the entrance of the two men, "it's a very bad business."

"What does he say?" Gilder questioned.

"Nothing," Burke answered. "That is why I sent for you. I suppose Mr. Denarest has made the situation plain to you."

"Yes, he has explained it to me. It's a terrible position for my boy. But you'll release him at once, won't you?"

"I can't," Burke replied reluctantly, but kindly. "You ought not to expect Mr. Gilder."

"Inspector," the magistrate cried brokenly, "you—don't mean—"

"I mean, Mr. Gilder, that you've got to make him talk. That's what I want you to do for all our sakes. Will you?"

"I'll do my best," the unhappy man replied.

A minute later Dick, in charge of an officer, was brought into the room. He was pale, a little disheveled from his hours in a cell.

The father went forward quickly and caught Dick's hands in a mighty grip.

"My boy!" he murmured huskily. Then he made a great effort and controlled his emotion to some extent.

"The inspector tells me," he went on, "that you've refused to talk—to answer his questions."

"That wasn't wise under the circumstances," the father remonstrated hurriedly. "However, now, Denarest and I are here to protect your interests, so that you can talk freely. Now, Dick, tell us. Who killed that man? We must know. Tell me."

Denarest went a step toward the young man. "Dick, I don't want to frighten you, but your position is really dangerous. Your only chance is to speak with perfect frankness. I pledge you my word I'm telling the truth."

Dick, my boy, I want you to forget that I'm the district attorney and remember only that I'm an old friend of yours and of your father's who is trying very hard to help you. Surely you can trust me. Now, Dick, tell me: Who shot Griggs?"

"I shot Griggs," said the young man. Denarest realized that his plea had failed, but he made an effort to take the admission at its face value.

"Why?" he demanded.

"Because I thought he was a burglar."

"Oh, I see," he said, in a tone of conviction. "Now, let's go back a little. Burke says you told him last night that you had persuaded your wife to come over to the house and join you there. Is that right?"

"Yes."

"Now, tell me, Dick, just what did happen, won't you?"

There was no reply, and, after a little interval, the lawyer resumed his questioning.

"Did this burglar come into the room?"

Dick nodded an assent.

"And he attacked you?"

"There came another nod of affirmation."

"And there was a struggle?"

"Yes."

"And you shot him?"

"Yes."

"Then, where did you get the revolver?"

Dick started to answer without thought.

"Why, I grabbed it!"—Then, the significance of this cracked on his consciousness, and he checked the words trembling on his lips. "No," he said with swift hostility in his voice, "no, you're trying to trap me, too! You! You talk of friendship. I want none of such friendship."

But Burke would be no longer restrained.

"You don't want to take us for fools, young man," he said, and his big tones rumbled harshly through the room. "If you shot Griggs in mistake for a burglar why did you try to hide the fact? Why did you pretend to me that you and your wife were alone in the room when you had that there with you, eh? Why didn't you call for help? Why didn't you call for the police as any honest man would naturally under such circumstances?"

Burke persisted in his vehement system of attack. Now, he again brought out the weapon that had done Eddie Griggs to death.

"Where'd you get this gun?" he shouted.

"I won't talk any more," Dick answered simply. "I must see my wife first." His voice became more aggressive. "I want to know what you've done to her."

"Did she kill Griggs?" Burke questioned roughly.

Dick was startled out of his calm. "No, no!" he cried, desperately.

"Then, who did?" Burke demanded sharply. "Who did?"

"I won't say any more until I've talked with a lawyer whom I can trust." He shot a vindictive glance toward Denarest.

The father intervened with a piteous earnestness. "Dick, if you know who killed this man you must speak to protect your wife."

The face of the young man softened as he met his father's beseeching eyes.

"I'm sorry, dad," he said, very gently. "But I—well, I can't."

Again, Burke interposed.

"I'm going to give him a little more time to think things over. Perhaps he'll get to understand the importance of what we've been saying pretty soon."

He pressed the button on his desk, and, as the doorman appeared, addressed that functionary.

"Dan, have one of the men take him back. You wait outside."

Dick, however, did not move. His voice came with a note of determination.

"I want to know about my wife. Where is she?"

Burke disregarded the question as completely as if it had not been uttered and went on speaking to the doorman, with a suggestion in his words that was effective.

"He's not to speak to any one, you understand." Then he condescended to give his attention to the prisoner.

"You'll know all about your wife, young man, when you make up your mind to tell me the truth."

Dick turned and followed his custodian out of the office in silence.

As the doorman reappeared Burke gave his order. "Dan, have the Turner woman brought up."

The inspector next called his stenographer and gave explicit directions. At the back of the room, behind the desk, were three large windows, which opened on a corridor, and across this was a tier of cells. The stenographer was to take his seat in this corridor, just outside one of the windows. Over the windows the shades were drawn, so that he would remain invisible to any one within the office while yet easily able to overhear every word spoken in the room.

When he had completed his instructions to the stenographer Burke turned to Gilder and Denarest.

"Now, this time," he said energetically, "I'll be the one to do the talking. And get this: Whatever you hear me say don't you be surprised. Remember, we're dealing with crooks, and they're dealing with crooks who have to use crooked ways."

Then the door opened, and Mary Turner entered. She paid absolutely no attention to the other two in the room, but went straight to the desk and there halted, gazing with her soft, penetrating eyes of deepest violet into the face of the inspector.

Under that intense scrutiny Burke felt a challenge and set himself to match craft with craft. His large voice was modulated to kindness as he spoke in a casual manner.

"Just wait for you to tell you that you're free."

"Then, I can go?"

"Sure, you can go."

Without any delay, yet without any haste, Mary glanced toward Gilder and Denarest, who were watching the scene closely. Then, she went toward the outer door of the office.

Burke waited until she had nearly reached the door before he shot his bolt.

"Garson has confessed!"

Mary turned and confronted the inspector, and answered without the least trace of fear, but the firmness of knowledge:

"Oh, no, he hasn't!"

"What's the reason he hasn't?" Burke roared out wrathfully.

"Because he didn't do it."

"Well, he says he did it!"

Mary, in her turn, resorted to a bit of finesse, in order to learn whether or not Garson had been arrested.

"But how could he have done it, when he wasn't?" she began.

"Where did he go?"

"You ought to know, since you have arrested him, and he has confessed."

Burke was frantic over being worsted thus. To gain a diversion, he reverted to his familiar bullying tactics.

"Who shot Griggs?" he shouted.

"My husband shot a burglar, Mary said angrily. "Was his name Griggs?"

"Oh, you know better than that."

Burke declared, triumphantly. "You see, we've traced the Maxim silencer. Garson himself bought it up in Hartford."

For the first time, Mary was caught off her guard.

"But he told me—she began, then checked herself.

"What did he tell you?" Burke questioned.

"He told me that he had never seen me. Surely if he had had anything of the sort, he would have shown it to me."

Burke pressed the button on the desk, and, when the doorman appeared, ordered that the prisoner be returned to her cell.

"I suppose," Mary said, "that it's useless for me to claim my constitutional rights, and demand to see a lawyer?"

"Yes," Burke agreed, "you've guessed it right, the first time."

Cassidy came hurrying in with a grin of satisfaction on his stolid face.

"Say, chief," the detective said with animation, "we've got Garson."

Burke asked Gilder and the district attorney to withdraw, while he should have a private conversation with the prisoner.

"Now," he said when they were alone together, "I'm going to be your friend."

"Are you?" Mary's tone was non-committal.

"Yes," Burke declared, heartily. "And I mean it! Give up the truth about young Gilder. I know he shot Griggs, of course. But I'm not taking any stock in that burglar story—not a little bit! No court would either."

What was really back of the killing? Was he jealous of Griggs? Well, that's what he might do then. He's always been a worthless young cub. A rotten deal like this would be about his gait, I guess. Tell me, now, why did he shoot Eddie Griggs?"

The Stage and The Players.

There was comeliness aplenty in the inspector's pretense, but it possessed a solitary fundamental virtue: it played on the heart of the woman whom he questioned, aroused it to wrath in defense of her mate. In a second, all poise fled from this girl whose soul was blossoming in the best realization that a man loved her purely, unselfishly. Her words came stumbling in their haste.

"He didn't kill him! He didn't kill him!" she fairly blazed. "Why, he's the most wonderful man in the world. You shouldn't hurt him! Nobody shall hurt him! I'll fight to the end of my life for Dick Griggs!"

Burke was beaming joyously.

"Well, that's just what I thought," he said, with smug content. "And now, then, who did shoot Griggs? We've got every one of the gang. They're all crooks. See here," he went on, with a sudden change to the respectful in his manner, "why don't you start fresh? I'll give you every chance in the world. I'm dead on the level with you now."

By now Mary had herself well in hand again, vastly ashamed of the short period of self-betrayal caused by the official's artifice against her heart. As she listened to the inspector's assurances, the mocking expression of her face was not encouraging to that astute individual, but he persevered manfully.

"Just you wait," he went on cheerfully. "I'll prove to you that I'm on the level about this, that I'm really your friend. There was a letter came for you to your apartment. My men brought it down to me. I've read it. Here it is. I'll read it to you."

He picked up an envelope, which had been lying on the desk, and drew out the single sheet of paper it contained. Mary watched him, wondering much more than his expression revealed over this new development. Then, as she listened, quick interest touched her features to a new life.

This was the letter:

I can't go without telling you how sorry I am. There won't never be a time that I won't remember it was not you sent up; that you did time in my place. I ain't going to forgive myself ever, and I swear I'm going straight always. Your true friend, HARRY MORRIS

For once, Burke showed a certain delicacy. When he had finished the reading, he said nothing for a long minute.

Mary's eyes were luminous in the joy of the realization that for her, after all, rehabilitation might be in a measure possible, though nothing could ever repay the degradation of years infinitely worse than loss.

Burke's harsh voice, addressed to a singular sympathy, broke in on her reverie of pleasure and of pain.

"You knew that?" he inquired.

"Yes, two days ago."

"Did you tell old Gilder?" he asked.

WIDE OPEN COKE MARKET FORCES PRICE TO $1.85

but for Fact November
Coke All Bought.

NO NEGOTIATIONS FOR 1914

Have Yet Been Reached by Either the Producers or the Consumers and Only Price Suggestion is $2.25.
Foundry Coke Drops 15 Cents.

From The Weekly Courier.
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12.—Sales of coke in the past week have been light, as the November requirements not covered by regular contracts had been filled late in October and in the first few days of November. The last important sale was 15,000 tons for a Toledo furnace at $1.35, which followed the fair tonnage of $1.20 a ton, reported a week ago. There are plenty of sellers of standard grade furnace coke at $1.20, although higher quotations are sometimes named, while there is no doubt that a good seller could pick up coke at $1.15. Various old grades could be secured for less, it is possible that the market would have declined, but this had there been much competition for business, but such competition has been lacking on account of the lack of inquiry.

There is no basis on which to quote a contract furnace coke market for next year. There is no inquiry out, and no sellers are seeking such business, realizing that furnaces would not take in the present iron and steel situation. The only suggestion as to next year is furnished by a contract made some time ago at $2.25, but at best this could be considered only a nominal quotation.

Foundry coke has softened about 15 cents in the past week, there being fairly good brands offered at $2.60 for either prompt or contract. Many sellers adhere to the old quotation of $2.75, while there are a few who sell up who quote nominally $2.60. The market can be quoted as follows:

Prompt furnace ..... $1.35
Contract furnace (nominal) ..... $2.25
Prompt foundry ..... $2.60
Contract foundry ..... $2.60
The wind and snow storm of last Sunday, greatly crippled the railroad movement and served to let the coke trade down, with the result of the continued blowing out of furnaces, shipments need to be reduced from week to week. Practically all the steel interests are blowing out furnaces, and two or three are now down to operating 50 per cent. of their stacks. The United States steel corporation, while reducing output, is not down below 15% thus far, though possibly it will reach a lower rate within a few weeks. There are few additional merchant furnaces in the Central West to blow out, as there was considerable curtailment months ago, and a fresh lot of furnaces have gone out in the past fortnight, leaving production at night that even the prospective light consumption should easily absorb it.

Average monthly prices of furnace and foundry coke, for prompt shipment, have been as follows, estimated according to prices named in these weekly reports:

	Furnace	Foundry
January	$1.35	$2.60
February	1.35	2.60
March	1.35	2.60
April	1.35	2.60
May	1.35	2.60
June	1.35	2.60
July	1.35	2.60
August	1.35	2.60
September	1.35	2.60
October	1.35	2.60

MINERS' LONG SUE.

Kentucky Court Holds They Cannot Recover From Railroad.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals has decided that the miners of Middlesboro county have no cause for action against the Illinois Central railroad on account of the road's alleged failure to furnish enough cars to provide reasonably steady employment.

The court held that the statute relative to the duty of railroads to furnish shipping facilities to the public "becomes operative only when some person having a contractual relation with the carrier has been injured by the breach of duty, and the right of recovery is confined to such person."

STEEL PRODUCTION FALLS TO 75% OF CAPACITY

And a Slump in 89% is Expected, But Manufacturers Hope for Turn of Tide in Three Months.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel situation tomorrow as follows:
A very severe storm swept down the Lakes, Saturday and Sunday, practically tying up the Lake ore movement, while another severe storm swept up from the South through the Wheeling and Pittsburgh districts on Sunday, effecting a very considerable curtailment in the movement of coke and iron and steel materials in the early part of the week and reducing steel mill operations as well.

The Steel Corporation's unfilled orders decreased 490,018 tons during October, against a September decrease of 219,643 tons. The October decrease was 49% of full rated capacity, and as the estimate shipments in October were about 47% of capacity. There is reason to infer that the October bookings were considerably larger, and that there was considerable writing off of business on books no longer live. Indications are that there will be only a small loss in November, or possibly none at all, through smaller shipments, less cancelling and heavier bookings, particularly of railroad material.

Steel production and shipments continue to decrease. Several of the large independent mills are now operating at only 50 to 60% of capacity, and the average for the whole steel industry is under 75% with an ultimate decrease to about sixty per cent, still probable.

A fortnight ago the sentiment throughout the steel trade was altogether lacking in hope for any material improvement short of about six months. In the past few days a few leaders in the industry have come to take a much more hopeful view, predicting very substantial improvement in less than three months.

In the Pittsburgh-Valley market pig iron prices seem to have been thoroughly shaken out, except as to Bessemer, and little if any further decline is to be expected. In other markets there is still something to be liquidated, but the market as a whole probably has no more than a dollar a ton to lose at the outside before a rebound occurs.
